LONG BRANCH

New Jersey

Affords the Variety That's the Spice of Vacation Life

LONG BRANCH IS MORE THAN A SEASHORE RESORT. It combines the pleasures of beach and surf with the delights of picturesque river, dainty lakes and sylvan beauties. Situated on a coast plateau, the highest point of land along the entire Atlantic Seaboard, extending along the ocean for six miles and inland two miles, it offers a choice of a multiplicity of types of environment in its various sections—Elberon, West End, Hollywood, Norwood, North Long Branch, Branchport and Pleasure Bay.

It is both country and city, for here are found not only the attractions of country—trees, lawns, hedges and freedom from crowding—but also all urban conveniences of trolleys, hospital, library, sewers, free garbage collection, paved, lighted, swept and sprinkled streets, pure water, efficient fire and police protection, banks and department stores.

In the matter of sports there are yachting, boating, fishing, crabbing, tennis polo and golf. In amusements there is everything from the merry-go-round to the theatres and mid-August carnival festivities. Then there are the city's fine drives—120 miles of them here and an equal mileage radiating through the contiguous country—all in a territory embellished with the highest skill of landscape gardening. And there are, too, the quaint old roadhouses on the Shrewsbury, famed for the succulent clambakes and shore dinners. There is quiet for the invalid and gay social life for those who like the dances and balls at the hotels and in the fashionable horse show, dog show and society circles.

Five Presidents have made this delightful resort their summer home. But its attractions have been immeasurably enhanced since then. Over $1,000,000 has been expended in improvements along the ocean front in the past few years. The famous bluff drive has been widened and a boardwalk, pavilions and casino erected. Now a $1,500,000 steel and concrete ocean pier is going up—is already built 350 feet to sea—and a great amusement park on the ocean front, opposite the pier, is being created.

It is the nearest point on the Jersey Shore to New York and the great metropolitan area by express trains—only an hour distant by the Pennsylvania and Jersey Central. There are eight stations in the city limits and some 100 New York trains a day in summer, not to mention the Sandy Hook Bay Steamers. Commuting is easy and pleasant, and the rates as low as 35 cents a round trip.

Long Branch is the metropolis and transportation centre of the North Jersey Coast. All points on the coast can best be visited from this centre of railroad, trolley and steamer facilities. But in itself it has charms for persons of all tastes. It's a clean home resort that's cosmopolitan. A cottage, leased, furnished, for the summer, would be a good investment.
